

A large, empty grid designed to resemble a house. The top part is a triangle representing a roof. Below the roof is a horizontal line. Underneath this line, the grid is divided into several rectangular sections. The first row consists of four equal-width rectangles. The second row has a large central rectangle, a smaller rectangle to its left, and another smaller rectangle to its right. The third row has a tall rectangle on the left, two smaller rectangles of equal width in the center, and a tall rectangle on the right. The bottom row consists of three rectangles of varying widths.
